CWU Reveals Excellent Results After Retesting Wendell Hill Hall B for COVID-19

On October 26, Central Washington University (CWU) retested students and employees as a result of a student who tested positive for COVID-19 at Wendell Hill Hall B. Test results revealed an excellent result with only one additional person testing positive for COVID-19 of the 148 individuals who were tested for the second time.

“CWU continues to coordinate closely with the Kittitas County Incident Management Team and the results of this incident show that CWU has an effective plan and response to COVID-19,” states Incident Commander Darren Higashiyama.

According to CWU, “the student from Wendell Hill Hall B who tested positive was symptomatic and has been in isolation since Monday, October 26. Eight more students from the residence hall tested positive on October 19, 2020, and have been in isolation since that time.”
